

North Africa Field Spectrometer Manufacturer

Article Overview

Spectrometer Technologies (South Africa) and global manufacturers like Spectral Evolution provide field-portable spectrometers suitable for North African applications.

Key Suppliers and Manufacturers

1. Spectrometer Technologies (Johannesburg, South Africa) Spectrometer Technologies supplies portable Niton XRF and infrared mineral analyzers widely used in mining exploration and production across Sub-Saharan Africa, including North African operations. Their instruments are designed for rapid, non-destructive analysis of minerals, ore bodies, and metallurgical properties, making them suitable for field applications in mining, environmental monitoring, and research. They provide full support including installation, training, and after-sales service, ensuring reliability in remote locations . 2. Spectral Evolution (Haverhill, Massachusetts, USA) Spectral Evolution manufactures field-portable UV-Vis-NIR and NIR spectroradiometers for environmental remote sensing, soil research, vegetation monitoring, and mineral identification. Their instruments are rugged, battery-operated, and designed for challenging field conditions, offering high-resolution spectral data and compatibility with mineral identification software. These spectrometers are suitable for North African fieldwork in agriculture, mining, and climate research . 3. Global Manufacturers Listed via Goodada Platforms like Goodada provide access to multiple spectrometer manufacturers, including:

- Zolix (China): Opto-mechanics and spectroscopy devices exported globally.
